Introduction

This Regulation Impact Statement (RIS) has been prepared by the Commonwealth Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Authority (GBRMPA). The purpose of this document is to assist the Australian Government to make a decision on a regulatory proposal to ban the dumping of capital dredge spoil material in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park (Marine Park). The Regulation will prevent the granting of permissions, by GBRMPA, for the activity under the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Zoning Plan 2003.

This RIS has been developed in accordance with the Australian Government Guide to Regulation, March 2014, issued by the Office of Best Practice Regulation (OBPR) in the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet, and in consultation with the Department of the Environment's Deregulation Unit and OBPR.

This RIS has been updated based on public submissions and advice received from OPBR on 5 May 2015 and finalised in accordance with the Australian Government Guide to Regulation.

The Great Barrier Reef

The Great Barrier Reef is an Australian icon and one of the most precious ecosystems on Earth. It is a world heritage property, recognised internationally for its outstanding universal value. Containing a maze of reefs and islands, it stretches more than 2300 kilometres along the Queensland coast (Map 1). It is the world's largest coral reef ecosystem, rich in biodiversity.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples are the Traditional Owners of the Great Barrier Reef. The Australian Government acknowledges the Reef's Traditional Owners, past and present, and their unique and continuing connection with the area.

The Great Barrier Reef is critical to the cultural, economic and social wellbeing of the more than one million people who live in its catchment, and is valued by the national and international community. It is a marine protected area, conserving the Reef's environment and supporting a wide range of activities, including tourism, fishing, recreation, traditional use, research, defence, shipping and ports. The Reef's environment helps bring billions of dollars to Australia's economy each year and supports almost 70,000 jobs.

Inshore habitats in the northern third of the Marine Park, north of Cooktown, are believed to be in good or very good condition, due in large part to the relatively undisturbed catchment and a lack of development. Environmental assessments indicate the Reef is under pressure from a range of human activities, especially in the inshore waters south of Cooktown where declines in water quality, particularly excess sediment and nutrient levels, are reducing the system's resilience.

While the effects of dredge disposal are typically local in their effect, everyone's actions, whether big or small, to reduce threats and help restore its condition will improve the Reef's outlook. Combined, they will make the Reef more able to recover from the legacy of past actions and better able to withstand those that may threaten its future. The proposed new regulation will prevent further impacts on the Reef from one particular source of potential environmental degradation: capital dredge spoil disposal actions.

Timeline

In recognition of the importance of looking after the Reef, the Commonwealth (and Queensland) governments have, over recent years, commissioned research studies on the effects of dredge spoil on the natural environment and undertaken broad consultation. Based on this research and in light of the World Heritage Committee discussions about the Reef, in late 2014 the Government announced its intent that all future disposals of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park should be banned.

GBRMPA prepared a draft RIS on the proposal and conducted formal consultation in March 2015. Following the receipt and consideration of submissions, the draft regulation to give effect to the Government's proposal was refined. The Minister for the Environment is expected to make a final decision on this proposal by signing off on the requisite regulation in May 2015, prior to the meeting of the World Heritage Committee in June 2015.

The schedule below sets out details of both Commonwealth and Queensland government activities in relation to the dredge spoil disposal issue in recent years and the development of this RIS.

Scope

The proposal canvassed in this RIS is solely to address the Australian Government's intention to ban the disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park.

For the purposes of this RIS, the following terms are defined:

- Dredging is an excavation activity or operation usually carried out at least partly underwater, in shallow seas or fresh water areas with the purpose of gathering up bottom sediments and disposing of them at a different location. This technique is often used to keep waterways navigable.
- Capital dredging means dredging for navigation, to create new or enlarge existing channel, port, marina and boat harbour areas. Dredging for engineering purposes, to create trenches for pipes, cables, immersed tube tunnels, to remove material unsuitable for foundations and to remove overburden for aggregate<sup>9</sup>. The material excavated as a result of capital dredging is called capital dredge spoil material.

In addition the proposal states that:

- there shall be no further disposal of capital dredge material in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park from the date the regulation comes into effect;
- the Authority must not grant a permission for conduct that includes dumping of capital dredge spoil material in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park;

<sup>8</sup> Those Queensland commitments include the following: Protect greenfield areas by restricting new port development in and adjoining the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area to within current port limits. restrict capital dredging for the development of new or expansion of existing port facilities to within the regulated port limits of Gladstone, Hay Point/Mackay, Abbot Point and Townsville; ensure that any new development inside these port limits is also consistent with the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Act, the Queensland Marine Parks Act, their regulations and zoning plans; prohibit the sea-based disposal of material into the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area generated by port-related capital dredging.; mandate the beneficial reuse of port-related capital dredge spoil, such as land reclamation in port development areas, or disposal on land where it is environmentally safe to do so.; require all proponents of new dredging works to demonstrate their project is commercially viable; support on-land disposal or land reclamation for capital dredge material at Abbot Point.

- the ban apply to existing permissions for conduct that includes uncontained disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park where they have not yet expired;
- the definition of capital dredge spoil material should not include amounts from very small scale dredging programs (less than 15,000 cubic metres ), for example, those associated with an approach to a small boat ramp or reuse of sand for beach nourishment; and
- the definition of dumping should not include the burying of a cable, pipeline or tunnel for the purposes of critical infrastructure for islands, for example, those for water, telecommunications or electricity.

The proposal explicitly excluded dredging activities (both capital and maintenance<sup>10</sup>) as well as the disposal of maintenance dredge material. Impacts from dredging activities will continue to be addressed through the strict environmental regulatory assessment processes already in place (see 'Existing regulatory arrangements' section below). Impacts from the disposal of maintenance dredge spoil material will be addressed through other actions, including the development of a maintenance dredging framework as outlined in the Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan.<sup>11</sup>

The proposal was not intended to address other activities that cause turbidity within the Marine Park, irrespective of whether those activities require permission from GBRMPA. Actions are underway to address other sources of turbidity in the Marine Park (see 'Addressing the problem' below).

<sup>10</sup> Over time, sand and mud builds in shipping channels, potentially creating risks to ships and environmental hazards in the event of accidents. Maintenance dredging removes this material to ensure the channels can continue to be safely used.

<sup>11</sup> Maintenance dredging is necessary to ensures vessels have safe and reliable access to our ports. This practice has been occurring at long-established ports for more than a century, meaning a longer-term approach is required to reduce disposal in the Marine Park.

Assessing the problem

The Reef retains its outstanding universal value. It is the premier reef system in the world. However, the Great Barrier Reef Outlook Report 2014 and the Great Barrier Reef Region Strategic Assessment Report<sup>12</sup> highlighted the challenges to the ecosystem, especially in the central and southern inshore areas of the Region. While noting the heritage values for these areas have been impacted by a number of factors associated with urban expansion, agricultural practices and development, these reports also highlight the importance of mitigating the impacts to the Reef. The 2014 Outlook Report concluded that “Greater reductions of all threats, at all levels, Reef-wide, regional and local are required to prevent the projected declines in the Great Barrier Reef and to improve its capacity to recover.”

Water quality was highlighted as a key risk to the Great Barrier Reef in both the 2014 Outlook Report and the Strategic Assessment Report. The Great Barrier Reef has a total water volume of around 7200 cubic kilometres. This open water habitat is critical to the healthy functioning of the whole Great Barrier Reef ecosystem. It provides connectivity between other habitats, from the coast to beyond the continental slope. Open water is dominated by microorganisms (plankton) and supports a range of other plants and animals such as invertebrates, fishes, reptiles and marine mammals. Inshore areas of open water have been degraded, particularly in the southern two-thirds of the Great Barrier Reef. Elevated concentrations of nitrogen and suspended sediment are affecting the overall quality of this habitat, especially inshore, for a range of dependent species. Offshore and northern open water areas are considered to be in better condition.

Sedimentation — the inflow, dispersion, re-suspension<sup>13</sup> and consolidation (compaction) of sediments — has been a natural phenomenon in the Great Barrier Reef since the current sea level was reached about 6500 years ago. However, exposure of the Reef to terrestrial sediments and re-suspended marine sediments has increased since European settlement of the adjacent catchment with the central and southern inshore areas having the highest exposure.

It is estimated that suspended sediment loads are now more than twice as high as before European settlement in the 1850s. These increased loads affect sedimentation processes. Although in recent years there has been significant improvement in water quality indicators on the land including an 11 percent reduction in sediments, 15 percent reduction in nitrogen and 28 percent reduction in pesticides, there is likely to be a significant lag time (e.g. decades) before these improvements can be measured in an ecologically significant manner in the Marine Park.

In response, the Australian and Queensland governments have committed to continue delivery of the updated Reef Water Quality Protection Plan 2013 (Reef Plan) to work towards the 2020 goal 'that the quality of water entering the reef from broadscale land use has no detrimental impact on the health and resilience of the Great Barrier Reef'.

Activities within the Great Barrier Reef that contribute to increased sedimentation and re-suspension of plumes include anchoring and vessel wash from shipping, dredging and disposal of dredge material. Recent modelling suggests resuspended sediment could potentially travel considerably further than previously understood. Of these activities, GBRMPA only grants permission for dredging and the disposal of dredge material (see 'Existing regulatory arrangements' below).

Impacts of disposal of dredge material in the Marine Park

As noted earlier, the direct and flow-on effects of disposal of dredge material in the Marine Park generally occur in the central and southern inshore areas that are already under pressure from an accumulation of impacts. The disposal of dredge material affects the condition of values at a local scale, primarily water quality, adding to existing challenges to the southern and central inshore ecosystems.

Potential impacts from the disposal of capital dredge spoil material depend on a number of factors including the volume and composition of the dredge material; oceanographic conditions in and around the disposal location; proximity of the disposal location to sensitive species and habitats; and the timing and frequency of dredge material disposal. Potential local impacts include the burial or smothering of benthic fauna and flora (plants and animals that live on and in the seafloor), degradation of water quality, and losses and modification of habitat.

Dumping of dredge spoil material may redistribute some sediments and nutrients into the water column<sup>14</sup>. It is the effect of the repositioning and re-suspension of significant quantities of fine sediments which is a key concern. Increases in turbidity<sup>15</sup> at a local level may be caused by fine sediments in suspension. Fine sediments may come from the land and from the seafloor at the local level and may be resuspended by ocean currents, freshwater runoff,

Increases in turbidity may result in decreases in light penetration. Increased turbidity also affects coral growth, structure and survival. To reduce any potential pressure on the ecosystem, every effort should be made to reduce the amount of fine suspended sediment that is generated by human activities<sup>16</sup>. Monitoring of light and turbidity (as a surrogate for suspended sediments) during capital and maintenance dredging campaigns in the World Heritage Area confirms the effects of dredging, but indicate that potential effects are very specific to different projects (and struggle to distinguish dredge-related and other causes of suspended sediment)<sup>17</sup>.

The recently released Synthesis of current knowledge of the biophysical impacts of dredging and disposal on the Great Barrier Reef – Report of an Independent Panel of Experts<sup>18</sup> concludes that dredging and sediment disposal can change the physical and chemical environment and affect the biological values of the World Heritage Area yet notes that these effects will be context dependent and will differ between locations, types and extent of dredging and sediment disposal activities. Whether long term, lower levels of turbidity is better or worse than shorter term, higher levels of turbidity is case specific, depending on the factors described below.

Among that Report's key findings, it concluded the recent policy intents to ban disposal of capital dredge material in marine environments will mean future disposal, which will be limited to maintenance dredging, will contribute much less fine sediment. This reduced amount will still need to be considered in the context of other cumulative impacts on the Great Barrier Reef.

Major capital dredging campaigns in the Great Barrier Reef (and many maintenance dredging campaigns) have been required, as part of approval conditions, to monitor turbidity or suspended sediments (as total suspended solids or TSS), often as part of reactive monitoring programs<sup>19</sup>. These have typically included requirements for baseline data collection and the use of trigger values to assess compliance as part of an adaptive management plan. If these trigger values were exceeded, dredging operations would have to be modified in order to prevent sub-lethal or lethal effects on sensitive biological receptors (mostly coral).

However, historical monitoring data for the World Heritage Area have been limited in time (generally not extending long beyond the dredging campaign) and space (e.g. transects in the general vicinity of the dredging and, for capital dredging, selected potential impact and reference (control) sites away from the dredging site and disposal area).

Available monitoring does not suggest that recent dredging projects in the Great Barrier Reef have directly resulted in significant, short-term coral mortality but sub-lethal effects are uncertain, as are effects of long-term contributions to suspended sediments. In particular, suspended sediments may have serious impacts on recovery of reefs from other disturbances (reducing resilience); such impacts would not be detected in most environmental impact assessments and are potentially important given the degraded condition of many inshore reefs in the areas where the action takes place<sup>20</sup>.

Seagrass meadows near dredging activities in the Great Barrier Reef have a high exposure and sensitivity to dredging pressures, although some also have high capacity for recovery. Direct and indirect impacts on seagrasses of past capital dredging have been documented, albeit generally inside predicted areas. Losses were a relatively small proportion of local seagrass populations, but even small losses are more critical in the context of the overall degraded condition of Great Barrier Reef seagrass populations.<sup>21</sup>

Recent history of capital dredge spoil disposal in Marine Park

The amount of capital dredge spoil material that requires disposal is directly linked to major capital dredging campaigns, usually from port developments. The worldwide trend towards longer, deeper draft ships creates demand for wider, deeper channels and the associated need for dredging and infrastructure. From 2000 to 2013, capital dredge spoil has been permitted to be disposed of within the Marine Park on four occasions (Table 1). In each case, the disposal required a permit from GBRMPA under both the GBRMP Act and the Sea Dumping Act. In each case the actual volumes disposed were less than the permitted volumes.

In addition, permits have been granted for two projects where works have yet to commence: the uncontained disposal of 3 million cubic metres for the expansion of the port at Abbot Point and development of a marina at Great Keppel Island (where all material will be contained in geotextile bags that will be used to form a rock wall).

Growth in Great Barrier Reef ports is highly dependent on global economic (e.g. demand and price for minerals and resources) and technological factors (e.g. increases in ship draft) - see discussion in Box 1. The Strategic Assessment Report noted the demands for port expansion, and in particular dredging, were expanding over much of the past decade, driven principally by growth in the resources sector. However, recent falls in international resource prices have reduced pressure for port expansions and resulted in changes to, or withdrawal of, expansion proposals. Nevertheless, given the cyclical nature of resource prices and the significant mineral deposits in central Queensland, it is likely that demands for port expansion may return in the future in response to increased global demand, thus requiring ongoing government oversight to ensure impacts on the Great Barrier Reef are well-managed.

Box 1: The importance of Great Barrier Reef ports

As an island nation, Australia is dependent on maritime trade. Consequently, ports and associated infrastructure are of significant economic and social importance to Australia. A number of Queensland's ports, including those in and adjacent to the Great Barrier Reef, are nationally significant for cargo throughputs and contributions to the national economy. The value of goods shipped from ports adjacent is approximately $40 billion each year.<sup>22</sup>

There are 12 ports in or adjacent to the Great Barrier Reef. In 2011–12, these ports accounted for 76 per cent of the total throughput for all Queensland ports combined. This amounted to 199.8 million tonnes of imports and exports, up from 191.5 million tonnes in 2008–09. In that same year, for all Queensland ports combined, coal made up 63 per cent of the throughput volume, petroleum products six per cent, and metals and minerals five per cent. Other commodities include agricultural products, and general cargo.<sup>23</sup>

The four busiest ports in relation to commercial vessel visits in 2011–12 were Gladstone (1453 visits), Hay Point (809 visits), Townsville (747 visits) and Cairns (720 visits). In terms of infrastructure and operational capacity, the largest ports are Abbot Point, Gladstone, Hay Point and Townsville. Over the last decade, the total throughput of these ports has increased.

Shipping channels and berths provide safe and efficient access to ports. They are critical pieces of national infrastructure equal in importance to road and rail networks. Dredging of shipping channels is an essential part of port operation. Channel widening and deepening is necessary if ports are to accommodate the increasing volume and size of visiting ships. As the international economy grows and larger ships are used to achieve economies of scale, there will be increased pressure to dredge channels and berths.

Existing regulatory arrangements

The disposal of capital dredge spoil in the Marine Park is an activity that requires environmental impact assessment and permitting<sup>24</sup>. In addition to Marine Park-specific legislation, there are international, Commonwealth and Queensland laws that control dumping of dredged material at sea to reduce and manage the associated impacts on the marine environment.

It is clear from the material below that the myriad of regulatory arrangements covering the disposal of dredge spoil in the Marine Park adds significant complexity to a potential project proponent. Obtaining adequate legal and technical advice and preparing the necessary written materials to apply for approval/permissions takes significant time and effort, with no certainty of a positive outcome for the applicant.

International

The 1996 Protocol to the Convention on the Prevention of Marine Pollution by Dumping of Wastes and other Matter, 1972 (the 1996 London Protocol) limits the types of materials that may be considered for ocean disposal. The aims of this Protocol are to protect and preserve the marine environment from all sources of pollution and to prevent, reduce and eliminate pollution by controlling the dumping of wastes and other materials at sea. Australia is party to this Protocol, which is administered by the Department of the Environment through the Environment Protection (Sea Dumping) Act 1981.

Commonwealth

Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Act 1975 (GBRMP Act): Section 7 of the GBRMP Act sets out the functions of the Authority. These include, but are not limited to, (i) the making of recommendations to the Minister in relation to the care and development of the Marine Park including recommendations ... as to regulations that should be made under the Act; (ii) preparing and publishing plans and policies about the way in which the Authority intends to manage the Marine Park or perform its other functions; and (iii) managing the Marine Park including the consideration of applications for permissions under the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Zoning Plan 2003.

The Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Zoning Plan 2003 requires that the disposal of dredge spoil within the Marine Park requires permission from the Authority. This is achieved through the assessment of an application for the activity including the consideration of mandatory and discretionary considerations as outlined in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Regulations 1983.

The nature of the mandatory considerations (Reg 88Q) span impacts on the environment and heritage, cultural and social values; options for monitoring, managing and mitigating the potential impacts of the proposed conduct; whether the activity is consistent with the objectives of the zone as set out in the zoning plan; if the proposed conduct also requires an approval or permit under the EPBC Act; any written comments received about the application in response to the public advertisement published in accordance with regulation 88D; and any other matters relevant to the orderly and proper management of the Marine Park.

Discretionary considerations (Reg 88R) are considered on a case-by-case manner specific to the individual applications received. These considerations include the requirement for users of the Marine Park to take all reasonable steps to prevent or minimise harm to the environment in the Marine Park; the effect that the grant of the permission will have on public appreciation, understanding and enjoyment of the Marine Park; the impact of the conduct in the context of other conduct in the relevant area or nearby areas, or in the Marine Park; any policies or guidelines issued by the Authority about the management of the Marine Park or the performance of the Authority's functions; if the application for the permission relates to an undeveloped project the cost of which will be large — the capacity of the applicant to satisfactorily develop and manage the project; whether approval or permission under Queensland law has been, or is likely to be, granted and, if granted, the terms and conditions of it being granted; any international Convention to which Australia is a signatory, or any agreement between the Commonwealth and a State or Territory, that is relevant to the application; any relevant law of the Commonwealth, or Queensland or a relevant plan made under such a law, relating to the management of the environment, or an area in the Marine Park; any relevant recovery plan, wildlife conservation plan, threat abatement plan or approved conservation advice, under the EPBC Act; whether the applicant for the permission is a suitable person to hold such a permission; any other matters relevant to achieving the objects of the Act.

In addition, there are several limitations on the Authority granting permissions, which have been put in place over time to provide certainty on how the Authority will make decisions in relation to certain activities. These include limitations on taking protected species; on taking leader prawn broodstock in the Habitat Protection Zone in the Mission Beach Leader Prawn Broodstock Capture Area; on swimming with dwarf minke whales in part of the Cairns Planning Area — maximum number of permissions that may be granted; and on entering or using the Princess Charlotte Bay Special Management Area.

The purpose of GBRMPA's Dredging and Spoil Disposal Policy (2010) is to provide a transparent, consistent and contemporary approach to environmental impact management of dredging and spoil disposal in the Marine Park.

Environment Protection (Sea Dumping) Act 1981 (Sea Dumping Act): Australia regulates the loading and dumping of waste at sea under the Sea Dumping Act. The aim is to minimise pollution threats by prohibiting ocean disposal of waste considered too harmful to be released in the marine environment and regulating permitted waste disposal to ensure environmental impacts are minimised. Permits are required for all sea dumping operations. Permits are most commonly issued for dredging operations. For sea dumping within the Marine Park, the Sea Dumping Act is administered by GBRMPA.

Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act 1999 (EPBC Act): Approval under the EPBC Act for the dumping of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park may be required depending on the scale of potential impacts on matters of national environmental significance. The EPBC Act decision is made by the Minister for the Environment or his delegate within the Department of the Environment. Although GBRMPA advice is considered in this decision as part of arrangements under a Memorandum of Understanding between GBRMPA and the Department, GBRMPA is not the decision maker. When an activity requires an EPBC Act approval, the decision on the EPBC approval must be made before GBRMPA is able to make a decision on the same activity.

The National Assessment Guidelines for Dredging (2009) set out the framework for the environmental impact assessment and permitting of ocean disposal of dredged material. The framework includes (i) evaluating alternatives to ocean disposal, (ii) assessing loading and disposal sites, (iii) assessing potential impacts on the marine environment and other users, and (iv) determining management and monitoring requirements. The Guidelines are intended to provide greater certainty about the assessment and permitting process as well as provide some guidance on opportunities for longer-term strategic planning. They also consider the range in size of differing dredge disposal activities.

Queensland

Queensland has jurisdiction for its State coastal waters which extend three nautical miles from the coast of the Queensland mainland or its islands and is the primary regulator for adjacent land. This often overlaps with the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park.

Disposal of dredge material undertaken in state waters requires a range of State approvals such as tidal works approval under the Sustainable Planning Act 2009 and Environmentally Relevant Activity (ERA) approval under the Environmental Protection Act 1994. If the activity occurs within a State Marine Park, it may also require a State Marine Park Permit, which in the Great Barrier Reef is often a joint permit with GBRMPA.

Additional approvals under the Fisheries Act 1994, Nature Conservation Act 1992 and/or the Coastal Protection and Management Act 1995 may also be required depending on the location and nature of the dredging/disposal works.

Approval processes under the Sustainable Planning Act 2009 for tidal works, or otherwise disposing of dredge material or other solid waste material in tidal water require assessment against the National Assessment Guidelines for Dredging (2009).

All dredging and dredge spoil disposal in Queensland must be consistent with the requirements of the London Protocol. The Sea Dumping Act also applies to state coastal waters.

Why Government action is necessary

Clear and strong government action is needed to ensure the protection of the Great Barrier Reef from the impacts of capital dredge spoil disposal and to provide certainty for those seeking to dump dredge spoil. The existing regulatory environment does not ensure these outcomes.

GBRMPA's 2014 Outlook Report concluded that economic growth is projected to continue in Queensland with a large proportion of this growth occurring in and adjacent to the Marine Park. Population in the Great Barrier Reef catchment is also expected to continue to grow at rates well above the national average for the foreseeable future. Both these drivers change land-use patterns in the catchment, including expanding the urban footprint to accommodate an increasing number of residents and increasing demand for infrastructure.

Management tools such as regulations, zoning plans, plans of management, permits and compliance, will allow management agencies to continue to set and refine the environmental standards necessary to achieve the desired goals, outcomes and targets for the Reef's values. The Government's actions to protect the Marine Park from the impact of disposing of capital dredge spoil material through the proposed regulation complements these activities.

The Great Barrier Reef Region Strategic Assessment Report and the 2014 Outlook Report both highlighted the high risk posed by disposal of dredge material to the Great Barrier Reef. This assessment acknowledged that any future port expansion would heighten the risk, with both reports noting that "The disposal of dredge material is not continuous; however, the frequency and volume of disposal and re-suspension of dredge material is likely to increase with continued development and expansion of ports in the coming decade".

Over the period 2000 to 2013, 8,987,553 cubic metres of capital dredge spoil material was dumped within the Marine Park. This proposal addresses one of the challenges highlighted by the 2014 Outlook Report and the Strategic Assessment Report: the disposal and subsequent re-suspension of capital dredge spoil. The 2015 report of an Independent Panel of Experts<sup>25</sup>, forecast that the implementation of government policies to ban the disposal of capital dredge spoil material in marine environments (the proposal outlined in this RIS in addition to commitments by the Queensland Government in the Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan) mean that there will be much less fine sediment in the future (potentially about five to ten percent of the estimated long-term average input from rivers in the comparison).

Desired outcomes of Government action

In light of these assessments of future risk, the desired outcomes from this proposal are:

- to improve water quality in the Marine Park;
- to increase protection and conservation of the plants and animals of the Marine Park, including protected species; and therefore,
- to improve the Great Barrier Reef's overall World Heritage values; as well as
- to give certainty to future project proponents about capital dredge spoil disposal in the

Marine Park.

The GBRMP Act makes the Australian Government responsible for the protection and conservation of the Marine Park and makes GBRMPA responsible for assisting in meeting Australia's international responsibilities in relation to the environment and protection of world heritage (especially Australia's responsibilities under the World Heritage Convention) (Part 1, Section 2A(2c) of the Act).

Additionally, in its management of the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area, Australia has specific obligations under Article 4 of the World Heritage Convention:

Each State Party to this Convention recognizes that the duty of ensuring the identification, protection, conservation, presentation and transmission to future generations of the... natural heritage referred to in Articles 1 and 2 and situated on its territory, belongs primarily to that State. It will do all it can to this end, to the utmost of its own resources and, where appropriate, with any international assistance and co-operation, in particular, financial, artistic, scientific and technical, which it may be able to obtain.

In accordance with the Minister for the Environment's stated intent to ban the disposal of spoil from capital dredging with the Marine Park, the public consultation documentation included a proposal to achieve the desired outcomes (a preferred solution) as well as two other options. Details of the three options are provided below.

Addressing uncertainty

No decision made by GBRMPA, or other decision makers, can be made with complete certainty; there are always factors that will not be able to be completely informed by science or other information, and this is particularly so when looking at complex environmental systems like the Marine Park.

For the purposes of this proposal, the sources of the uncertainty include: (i) improving yet still incomplete science about the long-term and sub-lethal impacts associated with the disposal of capital dredge spoil material; and (ii) that Marine Park decisions on applications to dispose capital dredge spoil material are made on a case-by-case basis after considering a number of mandatory and discretionary factors as set out in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Regulations.

A third uncertainty, the nature of the global economy meaning that projects requiring the disposal of capital dredge spoil material, is driven by forces external to GBRMPA's control cannot be addressed by this proposal yet is considered to the extent possible under each option.

It is unlikely that there will ever be complete knowledge around the impacts associated with the disposal of capital dredge spoil material. Although the uncertainty about impacts has been reducing over time, there are still unknowns that mean that a case-by-case decision making structure could unintentionally result in adverse impacts occurring to the Great Barrier Reef. Given the outlook for the Great Barrier Reef is poor, has worsened over the last five years and is expected to continue to decline<sup>26</sup>, actions to address all risks, especially the highest risks are required.

Therefore given the complexity of the Reef ecosystem, its global uniqueness, and its status as a World Heritage site, the environmental risks to the Great Barrier Reef of not banning the disposal of capital dredge spoil material are high.

Options to address the problem

Regulation to ban the future disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park (preferred solution)

GBRMPA considers that a key action to assist with achieving the desired outcomes is to implement a regulation to ban the dumping of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park<sup>27</sup>. The intention of the proposed regulation is that all future disposals into the Marine Park of capital dredge spoil material be banned from the date the regulation comes into effect (and include permissions that have already been granted for uncontained disposal).

The regulation should provide that

- there shall be no further disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park from the date the regulation comes into effect;
- the Authority must not grant a permission for conduct that includes dumping of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park;
- the ban apply to existing permissions where they have not yet expired for conduct that includes uncontained disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park;
- the definition of capital dredge spoil material should not include amounts from very small scale dredging programs (less than 15,000 cubic metres), for example, those associated with an approach to a small boat ramp or for reuse of sand for beach nourishment; and
- the definition of dumping should not include the burying of a cable, pipeline or tunnel for the purposes of infrastructure, for example, those for water, telecommunications or electricity.

Rationale: The independent assessment of management effectiveness carried out as part of the Strategic Assessment found that Marine Park zoning provided a high level of certainty for some activities (such as extractive use), but does not provide explicit guidance on where many activities not regulated by the Zoning Plan can be carried out. The assessment considered that greater certainty was required to inform where and how ports can operate within and adjacent to the Region.

The proposed regulation would provide the highest level of certainty for achieving the desired outcomes for the Marine Park. It would also provide certainty that the unintended impacts of the disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park would not occur; that case-by-case decisions on Marine Park applications for permission to dispose of capital dredge spoil material would no longer be possible and businesses would not spend funds on developing applications and associated documentation to dispose of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park.

<sup>27</sup> The proposal did not include the disposal of maintenance dredge spoil material because GBRMPA believes it is best dealt with through other actions, including the establishment of a maintenance dredging framework as committed to in the Reef 205 0Long-Term Sustainability Plan.

This option would explicitly prohibit GBRMPA's ability to grant permission for the disposal of capital dredge spoil material if it was inconsistent with what the regulation allow.

The population of the Great Barrier Reef catchment is expected to increase by 1.6 per cent or higher each year over the next 20 years<sup>28</sup>. Population growth is likely to increase use of the Marine Park, which in turn is likely to increase demand for coastal infrastructure to access the Reef (for example, boat ramps) in previously undeveloped sections of the coast. Continuing to allow for the disposal of volumes of less than 15,000 cubic metres of capital dredge spoil material equates to a Very Small Dredging Program under the National Assessment Guidelines for Dredging (2009). This volume was chosen given the significantly reduced potential for unintended impacts as a result of disposal in the Marine Park. It also represents the equivalent of the amount of material from a small boat ramp (refer Table 1 for an example, Half Tide boat ramp) and allows for new boat ramps to be installed in the future. The very small volume would also allow small beach nourishment programs to be conducted. The disposal of up to 15,000 cubic metres of capital dredge spoil material still could not occur until after a rigorous environmental assessment under the Marine Park legislation. In addition the material would need to be suitable for sea disposal and a permit under the Sea Dumping Act.

This option reflects the Australian Government's intention to end the long-established practice of dumping capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park. The Marine Park encompasses 99 per cent of the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area. The remaining one percent is mainly comprised of port areas which are the responsibility of the Queensland Government, which have advised they will address separately. At the time of the proclamation of the Marine Park, these areas were excluded from the Marine Park area in recognition that ports were already operating in these areas. It is most appropriate to regulate the ban on disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park through Commonwealth legislation under the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Act 1975.

The Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan sets out the Queensland Government's intention to contain development to five existing major ports, four of which are in the Great Barrier Reef Region — Port of Gladstone, ports of Hay Point and Mackay, Port of Abbot Point and Port of Townsville. The limitation on the number of port areas will maximise efficiencies and economic outcomes, while minimising environmental impacts. The Plan also includes the intention to restrict capital dredging for the development of new or expansion of existing port facilities to within the regulated port limits of Gladstone, Hay Point/Mackay, Abbot Point and Townsville.

Region Program Report, which was endorsed by the Minister for the Environment in August 2014<sup>29</sup>:

Streamlining, harmonising and enhancing regulatory tools

- Promote a strategic approach to the development and operation of marinas and other access infrastructure along the Great Barrier Reef coast (REC12)

Improving certainty

- Support development of a Queensland ports strategy that concentrates port activity to long-established major port areas in Queensland and encourage port master planning (in line with REC11)

This proposal also significantly addresses recommendation R5 from the World Heritage Centre / Internal Union for the Conservation of Nature (IUCN) Monitoring Mission Report<sup>30</sup>, where there was an expectation that the Strategic Assessment would lead to:

- Spatial policies that will identify appropriate and limited locations and standards for coastal development, and also identify areas that should not be subject to development, and which will provide greater business certainty regarding development proposals and community confidence and understanding of future development scenarios.

This option achieves the Government's desired outcomes and is likely to have the highest net benefit.

Status Quo (not recommended)

This option would require no action and would maintain the status quo. The status quo is case-by-base assessment of applications proposing to dispose of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park based on an incomplete knowledge of the impacts of the disposal of capital dredge spoil disposal and subject to the variations in timing driven by global economic factors.

This option provides a low level of certainty achieving the desired outcomes for the Marine Park. All capital dredge spoil material disposal activities proposed for the Marine Park would continue to require permits and be subject to case-by-case environmental assessments by GBRMPA. This does not provide an effective mechanism to address the cumulative effect of multiple capital projects across the Marine Park.

As highlighted in 'Existing regulatory arrangements' above, there are mandatory and discretionary considerations the Authority uses in deciding on an application for permission to use or enter the Marine Park. The delegate has discretion on how to weight the various mandatory and discretionary criteria, but nothing in the existing arrangements could require that a delegate refuse an application to dispose of capital dredge spoil in the Marine Park (unless already banned under the regulations).

This option also does not meet the full intent of the policy which is to ban all future disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park. Moreover, dumping of capital dredge spoil material could still occur because there are existing permissions that allow for uncontained disposal in the Marine Park.

Maintaining the status quo is unlikely to meet the expectation of the IUCN or the World Heritage Centre for the protection required for the Marine Park and risks the Great Barrier Reef being listed as a world heritage site 'in danger'. The consequences of such a listing would include negatively affecting Australia's reputation as a world leader in managing World Heritage sites and marine protected areas and cause the impression that the Great Barrier Reef is no longer worth visiting and hence a reduction in international tourists holidaying in Australia. The Reef's Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders Traditional Owners, who consider the area as their traditional sea country, would not want to see their heritage values lost as result of ongoing degradation of the central and southern inshore area.

This option does not provide certainty that the unintended or unknown impacts of the disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park would not occur given the known gaps in knowledge. Through adaptive management and continuous improvements in monitoring programs required through permit conditions, there is a likelihood of improved knowledge over time. However, the timeframes over which this information would become available are too long, and the risks therefore too great, given the poor outlook for the Great Barrier Reef as identified in the 2014 Outlook Report. Further damage to the Reef may still be possible under this option if it results in disposal of capital dredge spoil in the Marine Park.

This option may result in flow on negative effects to businesses in the vicinity of potential impacts from capital dredge spoil disposal that rely on a healthy and intact ecosystem such as commercial marine tourism, charter and commercial fishing and recreational users as well as the aesthetic heritage values of the Great Barrier Reef. For example, 83 per cent of commercial marine tourism activity in the Great Barrier Reef was focused in about seven per cent of the Region during 2013. In that year, about 40 per cent of the full day visits took place in the Cairns Planning Area (offshore from Cairns and Port Douglas) and 43 per cent of full day visits took place in the Whitsunday Planning Area (the Whitsunday islands and adjacent reefs). Therefore activities that may degrade the quality of water in those areas have the potential to significantly affect tourism-related businesses in those areas.

This option does not provide sufficient certainty about when capital dredge spoil disposal in the Marine Park should be allowed, which was highlighted as a gap in the effectiveness of GBRMPA's management in the Strategic Assessment Report. Businesses would necessarily spend funds on developing applications and associated documentation to dispose of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park without knowing if they are likely to be granted permission. Alternatively, businesses may have trouble accessing suitable finances to cover the costs of a project if there is uncertainty about an approval being granted or if a legal process was to delay or potentially overrule a permit decision. This could have broader economic implications for those businesses and the economies of Queensland and Australia.

This option therefore does not achieve the Government's desired outcomes.

GBRMPA operational policy (not recommended)

The role of GBRMPA in policy development is confirmed in the Great Barrier Reef Marine

Park Act 1975 as set out below:

Section 7 Functions of the Authority

4. The Authority may prepare and publish plans and policies about:
  - a) the way in which the Authority intends to manage the Marine Park or perform its other functions; and .....
5. A plan or policy prepared under subsection (4) is not a legislative instrument.

This option would update GBRMPA's existing Dredging and Spoil Disposal Policy (2010) with the stated intent that all future disposals into the Marine Park of capital dredge spoil material should be banned from the date the policy comes into effect.

This option provides a low level of certainty in achieving the desired outcomes for the Marine Park. As highlighted in 'Existing regulatory arrangements' above, under there are mandatory and discretionary considerations the Authority uses in deciding on an application for permission in the Marine Park. The delegate has discretion on how to weight the various mandatory and discretionary criteria. Under regulation 88R(d), the Authority may consider any policies or guidelines issued by the Authority about the management of the Marine Park; this is a discretionary consideration. As such, GBRMPA operational policy in relation to dredging and the disposal of capital dredge material is one of many considerations in making a decision on an application. A policy could not require that a delegate refuse an application to dispose of capital dredge spoil in the Marine Park (unless already banned under the regulations).

This option is not able to deliver the full intent of the policy which is to ban all future disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park because there are existing permissions that allow for it to occur.

This option does not provide sufficient certainty about when capital dredge spoil disposal in the Marine Park should be allowed, as per the Status Quo option above.

The option allows for the same potential of increasing knowledge about the impacts of the disposal of capital dredge spoil material as the Status Quo option; however the timeliness of new information is not sufficient given the poor outlook for the Great Barrier Reef. Further damage to the Reef due to disposal of capital dredge spoil material would be possible.

This option is unlikely to be considered sufficient by IUCN or the World Heritage Centre for the protection required for the Marine Park or improve business certainty and risks the Great Barrier Reef being listed as a world heritage site 'in danger'. The flow on effects of this are as described for the Status Quo option.

This option also does not provide the certainty for business either through the case-by-case assessment processes described above nor for sourcing suitable financing to support their projects.

This option therefore also does not achieve the Government's desired outcomes.

Summary - Public Consultations and Advices

The issue of disposal of dredge material has been the subject of extensive public consultation and advice to GBRMPA over the past two years. A brief summary of that consultation is provided below. In addition, a full summary of the March 2015 public consultation on the proposal is also provided below.

Draft Great Barrier Reef Region Strategic Assessment and Program Report

The Australian Government and the Queensland Government undertook formal public consultation as part of the statutory process for undertaking a strategic assessment in accordance with section 146 of the Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act 1999. During the 13 week consultation period (1 November 2013-31 January 2014), 6616 submissions were received. While the proposal, as outlined in this RIS, was not canvassed as part of the commitments in the draft reports, many comments<sup>31</sup> were received that related to ports activities, impacts from dredging and disposal of dredge material and decisions to allow dredge material to be disposed of in the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area. In particular, many submissions highlighted concerns about direct use of the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area by port-related activities. Specific concerns included:

- the further expansion of port activities
- the risks to the Reef from increased shipping
- the Australian Government's decision to allow dredging, and the Authority's decision to allow the disposal of dredge material, and the impacts this could have on the Reef (many submissions expressed concern regarding a perception that the Authority had a conflict of interest in making the decision to allow the dumping of dredge material in the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area) and
- the effectiveness of proposed port management strategies in minimising impacts on the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area.

Draft Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan

Further public consultation on actions to protect the Great Barrier Reef occurred during a six week period from 15 September to 27 October 2014 on the Draft Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan. The analysis of that consultation process noted comments around dredging were one of the top five issues raised<sup>32</sup> in the submissions.

Based on issue descriptors used in the analysis process, the top five topics raised in submissions (excluding duplicate campaign submissions) are shown in Figure 1. Nearly a third of all submissions raised the issue of dredging, particularly in the context of its impacts on water quality. Submitters requested that a ban on dumping be legislated and dredging activities minimised in and adjoining the Great Barrier Reef.

Tourism Reef Advisory Committee<sup>33</sup>

GBRMPA is advised on Marine Park management issues through consultation with competency-based committees. First established in 1999, Reef Advisory Committees comprise a cross-section of stakeholder interests with expertise and experience in relevant areas. The Tourism Reef Advisory Committee (TRAC) members provide a cross-section of stakeholder expertise and interests in areas relevant to tourism on the Great Barrier Reef.<sup>34</sup> At their October 2014 meeting, the TRAC provided advice to GBRMPA on developing a whole-of-government approach to dredge and spoil disposal. Relevant to this proposal were the following points:

- Recognise, respect and continue to preserve the pristine status of the Far Northern Great Barrier Reef (from Port Douglas north) – no new capital dredging in that area and well-managed maintenance dredging at Cooktown.
- Commit to no disposal of capital dredge spoil in the Marine Park through legislation.

Local Marine Advisory Committees<sup>35</sup>

GBRMPA also is advised on management issues about the Marine Park at a local level by voluntary community-based committees called Local Marine Advisory Committees. These committees enable local communities to have effective input into managing the Marine Park and provide a community forum for interest groups, government and the community to discuss issues around marine resources. During each three year term, GBRMPA brings together the 12 Committee Chairs and another member from each Committee for a weekend to discuss, amongst other things, the current priorities for GBRMPA. At the most recent meeting (11-12 October 2014), the forum's advice was provided to GBRMPA on developing a whole-of-government approach to dredging and dredge spoil disposal. While not unanimously supported by all members, the Local Marine Advisory Committee Chairs advised that there should be no further dredge spoil in the Marine Park from capital dredging activities.

March 2015

On 16 March 2015, a media release was issued by the Commonwealth Minister for the Environment<sup>36</sup> announcing that public consultation on the proposal to ban the disposal of dredge spoil in the Marine Park had commenced and would close on 27 March 2015. In addition, GBRMPA issued a media statement<sup>37</sup> and sent more than 70 letters to key stakeholders (including all existing Marine Park Permittees that may require the disposal of capital dredge spoil material or have been permitted to dispose of capital dredge spoil material in the past or may require it in the future, for example, island resort owners and managers, port operators and boat and barge ramp managers) informing them of the opportunity to comment on the proposal. GBRMPA also contacted members of its Tourism Reef Advisory Committee and all 12 Local Marine Advisory Committees.

GBRMPA notified the public both through its website as well as through its consultation@gbrmpa.gov.au email address on the morning of 30 March 2015 that submissions had officially closed. Therefore, submissions received between close of business on 27 March and midday on 30 March 2015 were accepted as part of the consultation process. Extensions were provided to some individuals and organisations that requested additional time to submit their comments. In addition, two further submissions were received up until midday on 31 March 2015 and on 23 April 2015 and one addendum was received on 28 April 2015 to a submission received during the consultation time period were also accepted and considered in the analysis below.

The public consultation period was limited to two weeks because of the significant focus and opportunity for public consultation that had occurred since 2013, as described above. The Australian Government's intention to ban the disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park had been known publicly for four months prior to public consultation commencing (refer 'Timing' section above). In addition, GBRMPA afforded additional time for individuals or organisations when it was requested, as previously described.

GBRMPA acknowledges that the Australian Government requires a minimum consultation period of 30 days to meet best practice. Nevertheless, GBRMPA believes that sufficient time was provided for businesses that may require future permission to disposal of capital dredge spoil material to provide comment. Three of the four Queensland Ports Corporations (government-owned businesses) that operate adjacent to the Marine Park provided submissions as well as peak bodies relevant to the port sector (refer to GBRMPA's website for all submissions). No complaints were received by GBRMPA about the short timeframe for public consultation.

Submissions were received from 96 people or organisations, representing a range of Marine Park stakeholder groups including the tourism industry, recreational boating club, Traditional Owners, government, ports and resources sectors, scientific community, conservation non-government organisations and individuals (Table 2). This includes six emails received solely by the Minister for the Environment and deemed to be individual submissions for the purposes of this public consultation exercise. In addition, three types of campaign submissions were received, totalling 7628 (Table 2).

Submissions analysis

All submissions were individually analysed. A number of common themes were raised in the submissions. They are grouped below by each policy intent statement with responses by GBRMPA in relation to the claims.

There shall be no further disposal of capital dredge material in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park from the date the regulation comes into effect.

One submission suggested that the outcome of 'safeguarding the northern third of the Marine Park (which is in good and very good condition) into the future from the potential impacts of disposing of capital dredge spoil material' also be part of the intended outcome from the proposal. GBRMPA considers that the outcomes desired from the proposal already cover this statement, just not in as much detail.

The Authority must not grant a permission for conduct that includes dumping of all and any capital dredge spoil material in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park.

Many submissions, including the campaigns, suggested GBRMPA should ban the disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the entire Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area. The proposal covers the entire Marine Park, which covers 99 per cent of the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area. Under the Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan, the Queensland Government has committed to legislate to ban the disposal of capital dredge material in the remaining one per cent of the World Heritage Area.

Some submissions suggested that in cases where the impacts of disposal of capital dredge material can be appropriately managed and are supported by the best available science that the Marine Park remain an option for such disposal. This would not be consistent with the overall policy intent to ban the disposal of capital dredge material in the Marine Park.

There were submissions that suggested the ban extend to maintenance dredging material. Consistent with the Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan, the Australian Government considers that the disposal of maintenance dredging requires a longer-term solution, including the establishment of a maintenance dredging framework.

There were submissions that suggested the ban extend to dredging as well as the disposal of dredge material. The Australian Government made it clear in consultation documents that it does not propose to include any new restrictions on the granting of permissions for dredging into this regulation. The existing, rigorous environment impact assessment process will continue for dredging applications in the Marine Park. GBRMPA provided this clarification as part of the consultation process to ensure that stakeholders were aware of the scope of this proposal and that it did not include plans to alter existing rules for dredging itself.

The ban apply to existing permissions for conduct that includes uncontained disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park where these have not yet expired.

Few submissions specifically commented on the ban applying to existing permissions where these have not yet expired. Those that did either supported the measure or raised concerns about the precedent such an action sets for government decision making.

Some submissions misunderstood that this provision only related to one existing permit allowing for the uncontained disposal of up to three million cubic metres of capital dredge spoil material from dredging at Abbot Point. This permit (North Queensland Bulk Ports – a Government Business Enterprise – G14/34897.1) would not expire until June 2020. Once a decision is made on this proposal, this permit would not be able to be used after the regulation takes effect. However it should be noted that the Queensland government announced on 11 March 2015 to only allow the dumping of capital dredge spoil on land for this project).

This provision of the regulation does not apply to future permissions as no disposal of capital dredge spoil material, either contained or uncontained, will be permitted if it is greater than 15,000 cubic metres (see next theme below).

The definition of capital dredge spoil material should not include amounts from very small scale dredging programs (less than 15,000 cubic metres), for example, those associated with an approach to a small boat ramp or reuse of sand for beach nourishment;

Some submissions suggest that there should be no exceptions for any capital dredge material to be disposed in the Marine Park while other submissions called for either larger volumes (e.g. 50,000 cubic metres) or exceptions in emergency situations such as in the event of severe storms or cyclones or when there may be an urgent need for the establishment of coastal and community protection works. GBRMPA accepts that emergency situations may arise where capital dredge material may need to be allowed and has drafted the regulation accordingly.

One submission suggested that arrangements be in place to deal with issues associated with project splitting and / or staging. GBRMPA considers this is best dealt with through education of proponents and assessment staff using guidelines to applicants and standard operating procedures for assessment staff as part of the implementation of the preferred option.

The definition of dumping should not include the burying of a cable, pipeline or tunnel for the purposes of critical infrastructure for islands, for example, those for water, telecommunications or electricity;

Few submissions specifically commented on the definition of dumping. Those that did either supported the measure, raised concerns about new dredging or misunderstood that the capital dredging associated with the burying of a cable, pipeline or tunnel did not involve dumping of that material. A few submissions queried why the definition was limited to islands.

Within the Marine Park, to lay new cables, pipelines and tubes to provide services, such as for water, electricity, or telecommunications requires new trenches to be dug in the seafloor. This is considered capital dredging and is specifically excluded so as to be not affected by this proposal.

The definition of dumping will not include burying a pipe, cable or tube with capital dredge spoil material if the material had been excavated to create the trench in which the pipe, cable or tube was laid. Based on this wording, there will be no new restrictions on the granting of permissions relating to the burying of pipes, cables or tubes irrespective of whether the pipes, cables or tubes are for 'critical infrastructure for islands' or for some other purpose.

The restriction to 'islands' was misunderstood and was only meant to provide an example of the types of infrastructure that would not be classified as dumping. As noted above, the definition is not restricted to islands.

The other main point to note is the regulation will only restrict the granting of permissions for 'dumping' of capital dredge spoil material. It will not otherwise impose any new restrictions on the granting of permissions for the installation, operation and maintenance of such infrastructure. The same, rigorous environment impact assessment process will continue for dredging applications in the Marine Park, including the application of the National Assessment Guidelines for Dredging 2009.

Other

There was concern that worse environmental outcomes could result from banning all disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park because some coastal land includes sensitive habitats.

- Land-based disposal options typically involve placement of material in a dedicated storage area or use as fill material for future land development projects. This requires large areas of land both for the processing areas and the final placement. The recently released Synthesis of current knowledge of the biophysical impacts of dredging and disposal on the Great Barrier Reef – Report of an Independent Panel of Experts<sup>38</sup> summarises the known considerations and potential impacts with land-based disposal.
- Rigorous environmental impact assessments (see ‘Existing regulatory arrangements’ above) will still be required before any disposal on land is allowed to occur and consideration of sensitive habitats in coastal areas are part of that consideration.

Many submissions either misunderstood the original proposal by thinking the proposal was about dredging or would include capital dredging, were unsure where the regulation would apply or that disposal of capital dredge material was a pre-existing use of the Marine Park.

- GBRMPA will follow up with several individual submissions as well as ensure material developed for implementation of the regulation will clarify the position. These submissions highlighted the need for an effective education program when the regulation takes effect (see ‘Implementation and Evaluation’ below).

A few submissions called for complementarity and consistency in definitions relating to dredging and the disposal of dredge material (capital and maintenance) between Australian and Queensland Government legislation including when such legislation takes effect.

- GBRMPA will work with the Queensland Government to ensure complementarity of legislation to the greatest extent possible.

Other issues raised in submissions included:

- The need for assessment of the cumulative impacts of multiple dredging projects within a region should occur.
  - The Australian and Queensland Government have committed, through the Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan, to provide better guidance for development activities including cumulative impact guidelines and regional standards to improve assessment and management of cumulative impacts from all activities within and adjacent to the Great Barrier Reef.
- The need for GBRMPA’s Dredging and Spoil Disposal Policy (2010) to be updated to reflect the final regulation and other policy intents contained in documents such as the Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan.
  - GBRMPA intends that this policy will be updated as soon as practicable after the preferred option takes effect.
- The need for close to real time public reporting of volumes and type of dredging and dumping in proximity to the Great Barrier Reef.

- The Reef Integrated Monitoring and Reporting Program, committed to in the Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan, should assist with this reporting.

Some submissions highlighted gaps in the draft consultation RIS including:

- A lack of description of relevant Queensland legislation or the economic importance of ports to Queensland and the national economy.
- The need to reflect Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan commitments, which was released after public consultation began on this proposal.

These comments have now been addressed in this RIS.

No submissions provided additional details about timing of projects affected by this proposal or highlighted any new projects that were not known to GBRMPA at the time of the development of this proposal. See 'Estimates of regulatory burden associated with the preferred option' section below for further information about timing.

In addition a few submissions suggested that there was inadequate economic analysis of the impacts of the regulation, including a lack of actual costings. Only one submission provided potential costings that may be associated with the implementation of the proposal. Their information is provided below.

- Assessments for the Cairns Shipping Development Project indicate that land based placement of 4.4 million cubic metres of dredge material was 5 times more expensive than placement at sea ($360M compared to $60M), excluding any land purchase or dredge material management costs.
- Published analysis for dredge material placement options at Abbot Point identified that onshore placement would range in cost from $100 million to $320 million more than offshore disposal. Onshore options would also take between 2-5 years longer in terms of approvals and construction lead in times, significantly increasing the lost opportunity costs for projects.
- The Western Basin Strategic Dredging and Disposal Project at Gladstone identified that reclamation using suitable material would cost $20/cubic metre compared to $28/cubic metre for ocean disposal. Significant costs savings were achieved in this analysis because the material was being used to establish approximately 153 hectares of useable port land.

The Queensland Government's announcements on 11 March and 18 April (refer 'Timeline' section above) mean that the Cairns and Abbot Point projects mentioned in that submission will either be unaffected by the Commonwealth's proposed regulations (Abbot Point), or will not go ahead as originally applied for (Cairns). See 'Estimates of regulatory burden associated with the preferred option' section below.

Other options

Few submissions commented on the other options (status quo, policy) and whether these were suitable to achieve the desired outcomes. Those that did comment on those options either (i) did not believe they were satisfactory to provide certainty and longevity to the intent of prohibiting capital dredge spoil dumping in the Marine Park or (ii) did not feel they were adequately canvassed in the Consultation Draft RIS. GBRMPA has provided additional detail in this RIS on those two other options.

Very few submissions suggested additional options in relation to review of existing environmental assessment frameworks. Other options that were suggested included those described above, such as extension of the ban to the entire Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area, extension of the proposal to cover the disposal of maintenance dredging maintenance; or either having a threshold greater than 15,000 cubic metres or none at all. These and other options proposed are addressed above.

Outcomes from Public Consultation

The desired outcomes by the Australian Government remain unchanged after public consultation; they are:

- to improve water quality in the Marine Park;
- to increase protection and conservation of the plants and animals of the Marine Park, including protected species; and therefore,
- to improve the Great Barrier Reef's overall World Heritage values, as well as
- to give certainty to future project proponents about capital dredge spoil disposal in the Marine Park

Final proposal

As a result of public consultation, the final policy intent has remained unchanged in that all future disposals into the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park of capital dredge spoil material should be banned from the date the regulation comes into effect (and include permissions that have already been granted for uncontained disposal). This means that no further disposal of capital dredge spoil material will occur in the Marine Park from the date the regulation comes into effect. Box 2 sets out the proposed content of the regulation to give effect to this proposal.

This proposal represents the highest likely net benefit (as described below) to the Great Barrier Reef ecosystem and the highest certainty for achieving the Government's desired outcomes.

Box 2: Proposed content of the relevant regulation

The regulation will provide that

- the Authority must not grant a permission for conduct that includes dumping of capital dredge spoil material in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park;
- the ban apply to existing permissions for conduct that includes uncontained disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park where they have not yet expired;
- the definition of capital dredge spoil material will not include amounts from very small scale dredging programs (less than 15,000 cubic metres), for example, those associated with an approach to a small boat ramp, or material excavated for the purposes of maintaining an existing channel, basin, port, berth or other area for its intended use or for the protection of human life or property; and
- the definition of dumping will not include the burying of a cable, pipeline or tunnel for the purposes of infrastructure, for example, those for water, telecommunications or electricity.

Net benefits

This final proposal safeguards the inshore northern third of the Marine Park (which is in good and very good condition) into the future from the potential impacts of disposing of capital dredge spoil material.

Together with other actions from Commonwealth, Queensland and local governments, industries and the community, this proposal is a valuable step to halt and reverse any possible local impacts on the health and condition of the central and southern inshore waters of the Marine Park, particularly water quality. The primary activity in the improvement of water quality directly is through the reduction of sediments.

Ecosystem services are the contributions of ecosystems to benefits used in economic and other human activity. Recently the Australian Bureau of Statistics released an information paper presenting an experimental ecosystem account for the Great Barrier Reef.<sup>39</sup> Three main types of ecosystem services are described in the paper: provisioning services, regulating services and cultural services; and four main determinants and constituents of well-being: security, basic material for a good life, health and good social relations.

The Great Barrier Reef Region Strategic Assessment Report clearly demonstrated that the condition and trend of the Great Barrier Reef's community benefits<sup>40</sup> are determined, in large part, by the quality of the environment (its biodiversity, geomorphological features and Indigenous and historic heritage values) from which the benefits are derived. Many catchment residents understand and appreciate the Reef and have a strong personal attachment to it. Much of the natural beauty of the Reef remains, but underwater aesthetic values have declined in some areas. Reef-dependent industries contribute strongly to the Australian economy.

Therefore, improvements in ecosystem condition, health and resilience in the Great Barrier Reef will benefit individuals, community groups (such as recreational boating clubs), and businesses (including tourism, commercial and charter fishing) that rely on a healthy and resilient ecosystem for a range of community benefits and services derived from the ecosystem.

Impact on businesses

The proposed regulation will directly affect businesses that undertake projects that intend to dispose of capital dredge spoil in volumes greater than 15,000 cubic metres in the Marine Park. Such capital dredging campaigns occur infrequently, are generally of longer duration (weeks to months/years), and generally remove seabed material with a wide range of particle sizes (gravel, sands, silts and clays).

This regulation would mostly affect Queensland Government – owned businesses that manage large ports (e.g. Queensland Ports Corporations) and hence tend to undertake the dredging on behalf of their clients using terminals at the ports.

This proposal will provide consistency in government decision making when considering the disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park. This consistency should lead to greater certainty for businesses in the regulatory approval process and should assist businesses to develop and adapt their planning requirements into the future.

This proposal also means that lengthy and costly court cases resulting from third parties (usually environmental non-governmental organisations) appealing decisions made by GBRMPA may not occur, although it should be noted that approvals for disposal outside the <sup>40</sup> Community benefits include: income, employment, understanding and appreciation, enjoyment, access to Reef resources, personal connection, health benefits and aesthetics.

Marine Park are still subject to appeal rights under legislation other than the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Act.

The Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan highlights the Australian Government's intention to permanently ban the disposal of capital dredge material in the Marine Park. It also highlights several Queensland Government commitments relevant to this RIS including the following actions:

- Protect greenfield areas by restricting new port development in and adjoining the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area to within current port limits.
- Restrict capital dredging for the development of new or expansion of existing port facilities to within the regulated port limits of Gladstone, Hay Point/Mackay, Abbot Point and Townsville;
- Ensure that any new development inside these port limits is also consistent with the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Act, the Queensland Marine Parks Act, their regulations and zoning plans;
- Prohibit the sea-based disposal of material into the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area generated by port-related capital dredging;
- Mandate the beneficial reuse of port-related capital dredge spoil, such as land reclamation in port development areas, or disposal on land where it is environmentally safe to do so.;
- Require all proponents of new dredging works to demonstrate their project is commercially viable;
- Support on-land disposal or land reclamation for capital dredge material at Abbot Point.

By removing the ability for GBRMPA to grant permission for the dumping of capital dredge spoil material, those businesses that rely on a healthy and intact ecosystem should benefit from the proposed regulation. This includes principally the commercial marine tourism industry and the commercial fishing industry.

The Great Barrier Reef supports significant commercial and non-commercial uses, especially commercial marine tourism and fishing. It is estimated that, in 2011–12, the Great Barrier Reef contributed approximately $5.6 billion<sup>41</sup> to the Australian economy (primarily from tourism) and supported employment equivalent to about 70,000 full-time positions.

Commercial marine tourism continues to be the most significant Reef-dependent use — both in terms of economic value and employment. A reduction in Great Barrier Reef-related tourism would have significant negative effects on regional tourism in Queensland, which is estimated to be worth $5.2 billion<sup>42</sup> to the Australia economy. This would result in a reduction in earnings for local businesses that directly and indirectly service the tourism industry. In turn this could lead to increased unemployment in regional areas of Queensland.

The long-term attractiveness of the Great Barrier Reef as a tourism destination is largely based on the area's reputation as the world's largest and best known coral reef ecosystem — one that has spectacular and iconic species (whales, marine turtles, sharks, seabirds) — combined with high standard tourism and protected area management. Swimming, snorkelling, scuba diving and viewing animals are consistently popular tourist activities. The industry relies on the Great Barrier Reef retaining the characteristics and Outstanding Universal Value that make it a matter of national environmental significance and a world heritage property.

Commercial fisheries have been operating in the Great Barrier Reef for many decades and have played an important role in the development of regional Queensland. Fisheries product continues to be important to local communities, as well as domestic and international markets. A very high proportion (around 90 per cent) of the Queensland coastal population consumes fresh seafood. In a 2008 survey<sup>43</sup>, many consumers reported they preferred Queensland, wild-caught species, despite it being more expensive than imported seafood products, and many believed it would benefit their community and the Australian economy. Fisheries within the Great Barrier Reef continue to contribute a major component of Queensland's total seafood catch. In 2012 it represented about 52, 80, 21 and 30 per cent of Queensland's retained catch in the trawl, line, net and pot fisheries, respectively. In 2011–12 the economic contribution of the Reef's commercial fishing and aquaculture industries and its adjacent catchment to the national economy was estimated to be $160.3 million<sup>44</sup>.

However it is unlikely the commercial marine tourism and fishing industries will collapse everywhere on the Great Barrier Reef if this proposal does not proceed. Effects may occur regionally in the vicinity of the areas where capital dredge spoil material is disposed. Nevertheless, because of the uncertainty in the long-term and sub-lethal effects of dumping capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park, GBRMPA has considered that the risk to local and regional businesses from this proposal not proceeding would have significant reputational damage to the Australian Government in relation to the World Heritage listing of the Great Barrier Reef.

Impact on community groups

The proposed regulation should not negatively impact community groups as the community does not undertake major projects that result in the need to dispose of capital dredge spoil in volumes greater than 15,000 cubic metres. Rather, the proposed regulation should positively impact community groups and scientific organisations as they are generally in support of increasing the protection of the marine environment within the Marine Park.

There should be no impact on community groups that enjoy recreational boating or even for the international yachting community that requires marinas for berthing while visiting Australia. The ability to cater for new small vessel boat ramps has been retained in the proposal.

Impact on individuals

The proposed regulation also should not negatively impact individuals. The ability to build new boat ramps has been retained and should be able to cater for the projected population growth for the Great Barrier Reef catchment into the foreseeable future. Over the next 20 years, much of the Great Barrier Reef catchment is forecast to experience annual population growth of 1.6 per cent or higher, particularly in the southern half of the catchment. In comparison, the national rate of population growth is projected to slow, but remain above one per cent per annum over the next 20 to 40 years.

The number of recreational visits from residents in the catchment continues to increase, most likely as a result of three factors: population growth, an increase in the proportion of the population visiting the Reef and a rise in the average number of visits each person makes. It is estimated that 87 per cent of residents in coastal towns adjacent to the Reef have visited the area for recreation. The majority of coastal town residents feel there is no better place to undertake the recreation activities they enjoy than the Great Barrier Reef. There has been a steady increase in vessel registrations over the past few decades (Figure 2) which is likely to have translated into more recreational vessel trips in the Reef.

The number of vessels registered in areas close to the Great Barrier Reef has continued to increase. Source: Department of Transport and Main Roads (Qld)

People living adjacent to the Great Barrier Reef, as well as domestic and international visitors, use the area for a wide range of recreational activities, including fishing, snorkelling, diving, swimming, boating, beach and island walking, sightseeing, relaxing and socialising. For residents of the catchment, going to the beach, fishing and boating were the most popular activities in 2013 (Figure 3).

The graph shows the percentage of residents surveyed who undertake each type of activity more than once a year. Going to the beach was the most popular activity for residents, followed by fishing and boating.

Estimates of regulatory burden associated with the preferred option

Under the Australian Government’s Regulatory Burden Measurement Framework, the costs borne by those affected by the regulation over a ten-year period must be measured and presented as an annual cost so that offsets can be identified. This Framework calculates the likely regulatory burden of the proposed measure on stakeholders identified as businesses, individuals and not-for-profit organisations.

Affected stakeholders

As the regulation will prohibit the disposal of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park, only businesses undertaking capital dredging activities are likely to incur regulatory burden costs. Community groups and individuals are unlikely to make an application for such permission.

To determine the number of businesses that are likely to be affected, GBRMPA has identified any potential project proponents that could seek to dispose of capital dredge spoil material in the Marine Park over the next ten years. This information was based on informal discussions with proponents and knowledge of existing approved capital dredging in or adjacent to the Marine Park for which no disposal grounds had yet been approved. Given the time taken to plan these developments, GBRMPA considers it would be aware of all developments requiring capital dredge spoil dumping in the next ten years. Based on the information gathered, GBRMPA has identified four projects and businesses<sup>45</sup> that could potentially be affected by changes to government dredge spoil dumping policy (Table 3).

Subsequent to the initial announcement of the proposed regulation, announcements by the Queensland Government have meant that two of the four potential projects identified in

Table 3 will no longer be affected by the Commonwealth’s proposal:

Table 3. Projects that may be affected by changes to Government dredge spoil dumping policy from 2015 to 2025.

Dredging project/business name	Estimated amount of capital dredge material (cubic metres) requiring disposal to 2025
Gladstone Ports Corporation Limited – Western Basin EPBC 2009-4904	21 million
Abbot Point - North Queensland Bulk Ports Corporation –existing Marine Park permission G14/34897.1	1.7 million <sup>46</sup>
Cairns shipping development project - Far North Queensland Ports Corporation Limited - – existing Marine Park application G35667.1/ EPBC 2012-6538	4.4 million <sup>47</sup>
Dudgeon Point <sup>48</sup> - North Queensland Bulk Ports Corporation	May be up to 4 million (based on informal discussions). No current application or approval/permits.

On 11 March 2015, the Queensland Premier, the Hon Anastacia Palaszczuk, and the Minister for State Development and Natural Resources and Mines, the Hon Anthony Lynham, announced that the Queensland Government and the major proponents (government business enterprises) of the Abbot Point project had reached an agreement that “would see dredge spoil dumped on land on the site known as T2, [...] not [...] within the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area.”<sup>49</sup> This statement means that the Abbot Point project is unaffected by the Commonwealth’s proposed regulations, as it would not otherwise have been dumping dredge spoil in the Marine Park, which is wholly encompassed by the World Heritage Area.

On 18 April 2015, the Queensland Treasurer, the Hon Curtis Pitt, announced that the Cairns shipping development would not progress.<sup>50</sup> This followed the release of a draft Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) that included a preferred option to dump dredge spoil in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park and World Heritage Area.<sup>51</sup> Following the release of the EIS, the Queensland Government considered the project to be “environmentally and economically unsustainable”.<sup>52</sup> Therefore, this project will not proceed as outlined in its current application.

<sup>46</sup> Although the Marine Park permit allowed for disposal of up to three million cubic metres, the Queensland Government had previously revised that figure down, statement

<sup>47</sup> Although the application received by GBRMPA was for up to five million cubic metres, the draft Environmental Impact Statement identified total volume would be 4.4 million. <http://www.portsnorth.com.au/projects/cairnsshippingdevlproj.php>

As only two potential projects, Gladstone and Dudgeon Point, remain liable to be affected over the next ten years by the Commonwealth Government's proposal to ban capital dredge spoil material dumping in the Marine Park, costing of regulatory burden has focussed solely on these two projects. The timings associated with these two projects are subject to factors external to GBRMPA's control, as highlighted in the section 'Addressing uncertainty' above. However, GBRMPA has conservatively estimated the following timeframes for the two known projects affected by this proposal:

- According to its website, the Gladstone-based Western Basin project is continuing to progress,<sup>53</sup> however disposal plans for Stages 2, 3, and 4 have yet to be developed and approved by relevant environmental regulators<sup>54</sup>. A December 2014 community project update stated that: "Based on current and predicted shipping demand over the next five years from existing and soon to be completed industries within the Gladstone region, there is no immediate requirement for any physical capital dredging to take place"<sup>55</sup>.
- With the withdrawal of the Dudgeon Point application (EPBC 2014/6240) on 4 December 2014 and given that no further application has been lodged at the time this RIS was written, the timing of any future proposals to dispose of capital dredge spoil material is unknown. However, given the fluctuations in global drivers for coal from Australia, GBRMPA believes an application for the expansion of Dudgeon Point will be received during the ten year timeframe associated with the costings required for this RIS. In their June 2014 media statement<sup>56</sup>, North Queensland Bulk Ports Corporation stated that it was their intention to "complete a port master planning exercise over the coming year to comply with the proposed Queensland Ports Strategy and to then revisit the scope of the Dudgeon Point project".

Regulatory costs to business

In the absence of either Queensland or Commonwealth Government policies that place limitations on the location of dredge spoil disposal, project proponents could theoretically have considered disposal in one (or a combination of) the following four sites:

1. Land disposal;
2. Ocean disposal - within the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park;
3. Ocean disposal - within the exclusion areas inshore of the Marine Park; and
4. Ocean disposal - seaward of the Marine Park.

Following implementation of the proposed regulation, any businesses seeking to undertake capital dredging activities will need to design their development so that disposal of dredge spoil occurs in alternate sites outside of the Marine Park.

GBRMPA acknowledges that under the Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan (page 26) the Queensland Government has committed to prohibiting the sea-based disposal of material into the Great Barrier Reef World Heritage Area generated by port-related capital

dredging<sup>57</sup>. The Queensland Government will also mandate the beneficial re-use of port-related capital dredge spoil, such as land reclamation in port development areas or disposal on land, where it is environmentally safe to do so. The 11 March announcement concerning the land disposal of Abbot Point dredge spoil is consistent with this position.

After the Marine Park regulation is enacted and Queensland fulfils its commitments as outlined in the Reef 2050 Long-Term Sustainability Plan and as announced in recent weeks, potential dumping sites for capital dredge spoil material will be reduced to:

1. Land disposal; and
2. Ocean disposal - seaward of the Marine Park.

It should be noted that these options represent the likely avenues a proponent might explore after the Queensland Government's stated policies, and this regulation, take effect. By including them in this analysis, GBRMPA is not making any implication or judgement on their likelihood of approval by either the Australian or Queensland Governments.

Calculation of regulatory burden

The 2013 report on Improved Dredge Material Management for the Great Barrier Reef Region provided information on the potential costs of options other than sea disposal and assisted in the preparation of the regulatory burden costings. The method used to prepare that report was also informed by discussions with the relevant port authorities mentioned in that report. Only one submission to the March consultation process included information (refer 'Other' section in the summary of public consultations above), drawn from several published reports, on the relative costs of dumping of dredge spoil on land and at sea for various proposals. This information was difficult to reconcile with the information in the SKM report.

The regulatory burden costs of the proposed regulation arise primarily from any increase in financial costs per cubic metre to businesses due to disposing of capital dredge spoil in sites outside the Marine Park. These costs would comprise:

- those expenses associated with the hire/lease/purchase of capital equipment and other costs incurred in the collection/preparation/processing of capital dredge spoil to ready it for transport, (which may be more significant when the alternate disposal site is land-based – see below); and
- the variable transport-related costs that depend on the distance the dredge material will travel to get to the alternate disposal site. This cost increases slightly as the distance increases (for example, the cost attributable to a distance of 20 kilometres and 40 kilometres from dredge site to disposal site is $4.50 and $4.88 per cubic metre respectively)<sup>58</sup>.

The disposal costs vary greatly depending on whether disposal occurs on land or for beneficial re-use at sea. Disposal on land has additional costs associated with activities such as de-watering, stabilisation and land reclamation/habitat restoration. However, as the cost per cubic metre associated with the distance travelled from the dredge site to the disposal site increased with distance, these variable distance-related costs became relatively more significant.

<sup>57</sup> Recent media also suggests that no disposal will occur in the World Heritage Area, statement

In cases where spoil is disposed of on land but is used for land reclamation (or other beneficial uses), the economic benefits may help reduce the net cost of disposal on land, compared to cases where it is just dumped and not re-used in any way.

The regulatory burden of the proposed regulation was calculated by determining the difference in the cost of capital dredge spoil disposal under the existing regulatory environment (Status Quo) and with the proposed regulation (see Table 4). The annual change in regulatory burden is the sum of the additional costs imposed on these stakeholders in an average year. This was calculated by determining the change in disposal costs per cubic metre of dredge spoil in the Marine Park, assuming spoil was instead disposed of in differing proportions in the other potential sites.

In indicative costings, the overall cost impact of the final regulation on affected businesses has been calculated as $42.49 million (Table 4). In accordance with the Regulatory Burden Measurement Framework, these costs were divided by ten to give an average annual burden cost estimate of $4.249 million over the next ten years (from 2015 to 2025). The Office of Best Practice Regulation has agreed to this costing. The increased costs of the Marine Park regulation for the Gladstone and Dudgeon Point projects have been fully offset by the Australian Government from savings associated from the National Offshore Petroleum Safety and Environmental Management Authority reform.

Table 4. Indicative average annual regulatory cost impact of the proposed regulation on affected businesses. <sup>59</sup>

Change in costs ($m)	Business	Community organisations	Individuals	Total change in costs

Implementation and Evaluation

To give effect to the objectives outlined in this RIS, the Minister for the Environment will be considering approving a regulation to be made by the Governor-General in Executive Council under section 66 of the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Act 1975. The regulation will commence on the day after registration on the Federal Register of Legislative Instruments. This is expected to occur before 30 June 2015.

GBRMPA is responsible for publishing on its website this RIS and the public submissions received during the consultation period.

<sup>59</sup> GBRMPA has used the best available information at the time this Regulation Impact Statement was written to inform costs associated with this regulation.

GBRMPA is responsible for implementation of the regulation. Implementation includes communicating to potential applicants the requirements for the submission of applications for the disposal of capital dredge spoil material as well as internal business processes for assessing the applications.

Following implementation of the regulation, GBRMPA will continue to work closely with the port industry and key stakeholders to measure the ongoing effectiveness of the regulation in the achievement of ecosystem outcomes in the inshore waters of the Marine Park and for providing certainty for business as well.

GBRMPA will also ensure there is clear communication with stakeholders in relation to the types of activities that are and are not allowed to occur within the Marine Park to address misunderstandings highlighted from the public consultation process.
